About the art

The story and the editing had no AI at all. The pictures began as a human illustrator's original images commissioned for this book, and I enhanced them with digital gouache and some AI design tools. Some images, like the wheelchair-accessible playground surface, are AI-generated, so all children can see themselves in the book.

About the author

Dr. Tippy Curry believes every child deserves to see themselves shine on the pages of a book. A passionate advocate for positivity and representation in children's literature, she holds a Ph.D. from Howard University, a bachelor's degree from Georgetown University, and a master's degree from the University of Maryland, College Park.

Her greatest inspiration comes from the children in her life, whose laughter, curiosity, and dreams spark every story she writes. When she isn't writing, she can be found reading, traveling, playing guitar, and enjoying life with her family and their playful pup.
